

ABSTRACT

A tree data structure with range-specifying keys and associated methods. In one embodiment, the data structure is a tree that is stored in a machine readable medium. Each key has two values that define a range and has an associated data item that is associated with the range. Various embodiments of processes to search the tree, add ranges and keys to the tree, delete ranges and keys from the tree, and to generally maintain the tree data structure are disclosed.